FINAL NOTICE BEFORE LEGAL PROCEEDINGS Date:

Dear _____ Since you have not paid, we have turned your account to our attorneys and instructed them to start the lawsuit without further delay. However, there is still time to avoid the suit if you contact us in the next five (5) days. This will be your last chance to resolve matters at no cost to court proceedings. Respectfully, _____ It is regrettable that there will always be some customers who cannot or do not want to pay their bills. As long as you work your way through the six-step process to try to get your overdue amount, this letter is the final one you will send before it encourages legal proceedings. Letter of final notice before court proceedings - Sample 1. [Business Name] [Business Address] Re: Invoice No: [number here] Dear [Sir/Madam], We are very surprised and disappointed that you did not respond to our letter sent to [date] where we sent a final reminder that your account was late by [the amount]. In the past, we have always had good business relationships, but as a [small/medium] sized job alone, we cannot allow overdue amounts to remain unpaid indefinitely. Unfortunately, this means that we regret to inform you that if this amount is not paid by [the date] we will have no other option but to begin legal proceedings to recover the amount due. If there are any outstanding reasons why you haven't paid yet, contact us immediately so we can discuss them further. Yours Sincerely, [Name] [Title] [Email] Final Notice Letter Before Court Proceedings - Sample 2. [Date] Re: Invoice No: [number here] Dear [recipient's name], We are very surprised and amazed that despite our prior correspondence with you, your outstanding balance [of amounts] still remains unpaid. We've sent five previous reminders of the amount and that's now [length of time] because your payment has really become adushesive. Despite our recent good business relationship, we have no choice but to initiate legal proceedings if your payment has not been received by [the insertion date - about 7 days from the date of the letter]. If there is any mitigating reason why you could not pay, contact us immediately so that we can discuss it further. Respectfully, [Sender's name] The final letter of request is the last letter sent in an attempt to collect debt or repayment. The letter is sent before the exorionist or financial institution submits legal action against the debtor. What includes a clear communication advising the letter is the final date of the request for the name of the notice and the address of the debtor. Advising on previously sent notices. Advice on fees/fees owed (Total includes taxes, interest, penalties or other charges incurred due to non-payment). Include evidence from previous Clear timeframe when the final payment is due. The action to be taken if the payment is not fully received in the header should enter the company or individual requesting payment with their contact information. The date of the letter should also be included. Step 2 - Enter the due amount the debtor is due should be included in the Final Letter of the Request. Please note that all taxes, interest or penalties should be total. If there is evidence of a maturing amount, such as an invoice, it should be attached. Step 3 - Complete the debtor information. Complete the details of the debtor by specifying their name, when the balance is due and what the balance relates to. Step 4 - Enter the Payments option. Enter your payment options (select them as much as you want). The basic approach is to enter how much is owed, followed by a discount amount if the debtor pays within a certain period of time. In addition, if the debtor lives from salary to salary, it is best to have an installment plan ($ / week or $ / month). Step 5 - Describe in detail the consequences and sign. At this time the creditor should enter the penalties and conditions that should occur if the payment is not made. This includes, but not limited to, sending debt to the collection agency and that debts can affect the borrower's credit report. All letters of request should always be sent via certified post with a return certificate to ensure that the debtor has received it. Sample Final Request Letter to Jennifer Houston 4545 West Lakeside Lane Phoenix, AZ 85029 October 4, 2017 RE: Outstanding debt of $10,595.00 FINAL PAYMENT CLAIM Dear Mrs Houston, This is our last attempt and FINAL WARNING in an attempt to collect your debt. As of the date of this letter, there is an outstanding balance of your account of $10,595.00 for services provided on January 1, 2015. Note that this amount has reached more than 120 days in aging. Hello, General Accounting Department Johnson and Johnson Construction Welcome, you have arrived at RP Emery &amp;amp; Free legal documents page. Good writing, just like speaking well is a valuable communication skill especially when it comes to business issues. Business letters are usually more formal and are often sent to people we don't know. They need to convey the right tone - whether it's authority, dissent, pleasure or gratitude. Whenever you write to a potential customer, supplier or employee, it is vital to present an professional document so that you can make the right impression. To get started, we've prepared a list of standard business letter templates. You are free to use them for your own use with our compliments. You are not allowed to play these letters on any public view or resending media. The document starts here ***** Date: Until. (Customer) We have repeatedly requested payment of $ _____00 in your overdue account. Our demands for payment have been ignored. Accordingly, we will collect this account within the next ten days unless a payment is received or an acceptable payment proposal is obtained. Enforced collection of this obligation may result in additional legal or court costs and may impair your credit rating. Very indeed, © R. P. Emery & Associates - www.rpemery.com ***** Document ends here ***** HomeLibrary/ HOW TO WRITE A NOTICE OF LEGAL PROCEDURE At this time you have worked hard to collect the invoice from your customer directly. You have made numerous phone calls, sent emails, left messages, and sent three previous collection letters. At this point it's time for someone else to take over, such as a billing agency or the courts. You have already warned the customer that this could happen in the third collection letter and while it is not mandatory for you to send a notification that the customer knows you have followed this warning, this may smooth the transition for all parties involved and may even inspire them to contact you. Here's an example of what this notice might look like: Dear Mr. Smith, At this point we still haven't heard from you regarding the $ _____ invoice #12345 that should have been on _____. Nor did we receive a response to numerous phone calls, emails, or letters sent to _____ or _____. Since we failed in our attempt to resolve this directly with you, I regret to inform you that we have reported this issue to the credit bureau and submitted this invoice to the billing agency who will be in contact with you regarding the payment of this account. Respectfully, Jeanne Lee XYZ Company 111-222-3333 x123 There is not much to say in this letter, other than to inform the customer that they will no longer work directly with you on this matter. Remember, while you may be pretty frustrated at the moment, it's important to keep your cool and stay professional at all times. This is the last letter in our series of letter samples, you can find links to previous articles and below. Many companies, especially those that have a lot of tracking accounts, hardly send timely collection letters, but identify which of their accounts are due and in how many days. Why? We found that most companies do not use the right tools to effectively track, manage and act on their A/R data. When companies rely on manual processes such as aging reports and spreadsheets to manage invoices, collectors spend hours entering data, maintaining spreadsheets, and other tedious tasks when they might be inviting customers to track invoices to ensure receipt or call about upcoming due dates. You can resolve this issue by using claims management software that will not only help you quickly report your current account balance, but you will automate email, schedule follow-up calls, and eliminate lengthy administrative tasks.
